Police still looking for witnesses

By Steve Marschke

An intense police effort to find the killer of 16-year old Robert Castro in a drive-by shooting Jan. 4 has not yet led to any arrests.

"We're still kind of frustrated," said Lt. Bruce Muramoto of the West Sacramento Police Department. "We have a feeling somebody may have additional information that would help us solve this case, but as not come forward."

Police acknowledge that they are "investigating the possibility of gang involvement" in the killing, word has spread through much of the community that the shooting may have been triggered by a dispute between a West Sacramento gang and a Sacramento gang.

Castro is described as an affiliate, though perhaps not a full member, of the West Sacramento gang.

Police are hoping for a quick arrest in order to prevent a series of tit-for-tat retaliations.

On Monday, Jan. 8, someone through a powerful fragmentation bomb through the window of an unoccupied home on the 700-block of Kegle Dr. The residents of that home may have been affiliated with the Sacramento gang.

"There was no question someone may have been hurt or killed if people had been home at the time," said Muramoto.

The mother of shooting victim Robert Castro made an emotional plea in a recent radio interview for restraint, asking gang members to forego retaliation.

'I hope there's no retaliation,' said the slain boy's grandfather. 'I hope anyone with information will come forward.'

The boy's grandfather, Joe Castro, echoed that thought to the News-Ledger on Tuesday.

"I hope there's no retaliation," he said. "I hope anyone with information will come forward and help."

A funeral was held for Robert Castro on Jan. 9. The youth had reportedly written a school essay just prior to his death in which he said he was going to try to sever his ties with the gang and pursue a different future.

Lt. Muramoto said fear may be a reason more witnesses haven't come forward, although the anonymity of witnesses can be protected. Part of the slim evidence in the case so far is the reported sighting of a small, four-door car (white or silver) seen in the area at the time of the shooting near Cummins Way and Fairway Dr.

Anyone with information may call the police at 373-5870 or 375-6474.

Bridge financing discussion faces three week delay

By Steve Marschke

The proposal to sell bonds, to be repaid by landowners and residents of three future developments in Southport, to build a barge canal bridge will likely be bumped from tonight's city council meeting.

The council had originally been set to hold a public hearing on the proposal at its 7 p.m. meeting tonight. But city staff will ask that the matter be "continued" to the council's Feb. 7 hearing.

"We haven't got an agreement on the M.O.U. ("Memorandum of Understanding") language yet," said Leigh Keicher, the city's finance director. "We had hoped to have that on hand. But it's just a matter of getting the language finalized."

Keicher said that the major concepts of the proposal to set up a Mello-Roos financing district have already been agreed upon. The district would include the Southport Industrial Park, the Gainsborough (Bayside) residential project, and the Southport Gateway residential project -- all on the south side of the barge canal in West Sacramento.

The district will be authorized to raise over $40 million over several decades to pay for bonds sold to pay for construction. Some other infrastructure costs would also be authorized under the district.

Keicher said the public will not be put at risk by the Mello-Roos agreement.

Should landowners (which will include future homeowners in the planned residential developments) fall short in paying for the bonds, the city will not be required to step in and take over payments, he said.

"The local organization (city) has an obligation to administer the program, but will not be under financial obligation if there is a default," said Keicher.

West Sacramento's northern and southern halves are now separated by a barge canal serving the Port of Sacramento. The only crossing over this barge canal is a two-lane bridge at Jefferson Blvd.

The city has placed a moratorium on new development permits in Southport (the southern half) until a second bridge is built across the canal.

After you

City council member Wes Beers, Mayor Greg Potnick and Mayor Pro tem Bill Kristoff invite you to try the newly refurbished (though not quite finished) stretch of Harbor Blvd. north of West Capitol Ave.

Business owners such as the tool store, marine supply store, storage unit facility and other merchants on this stretch of road hope you will pay a visit, too. While construction was underway, through-traffic was forbidden and traffic to the stores (as well as their incomes) took a dive during late 1995.

16-year old girl's report of 'rape' may not lead to criminal charges

By Steve Marschke

A 16-year old Sacramento girl reported a possible rape Saturday during treatment at the UCD Medical Center, but a local police spokesman said the case may not have all the elements of a crime.

The incident in question occurred on Friday.

"She was in West Sacramento at a party," said Sgt. Ploof of the West Sacramento Police Department. "There were a bunch of minors drinking at the same time."

A male juvenile at the party apparently got intimate with the girl, but it was not clear that sexual relations were forced.

"Nobody was arrested. We sent this to the District Attorney for a determination of charges, if any," said Ploof.

Ploof said it was unlikely the male suspect, who is underage, will be prosecuted for rape.

Mayor's day job: watch over local parolees

By Steve Marschke

West Sacramento's citizen-mayor is now the parole agent in charge of Yolo and Colusa counties.

Greg Potnick, who has worked as a parole agent since 1990 (and for the state Department of Corrections since 1983) has been promoted to the department's Woodland office. His job entails supervision of four parole agents and one technical staff member who work with parolees in West Sacramento and other parts of Yolo and Colusa counties.

"I was very please to get it," he said Tuesday. "It's nice to be in a position to oversee (parole operations) in the community I grew up in."

GREG POTNICK

Yolo County has about 400 people on parole (usually felons who have done prison time). West Sacramento has a high concentration of those 400, plus a large number of people on probation (usually lesser offenders who have served time in county jail; or first offenders).

"We have crimes from 'A' to 'Z' among our offenders," said Potnick, "including minimal property offenders, substance abuse offenders, violent and sexual deviant type offenders also. We have very good agents in Yolo and Colusa counties working with them."

He added that the goal of parole is to "provide supervision while they're making the transition from parole to life outside," -- a goal he believes in.

Parolees have four levels of supervision.

The minimum level is one contact with a parole agent per month in an office setting, while the maximum level of supervision can require one in-home visit every month by an agent as well as up to three office visits monthly.

For this reason, workload among parole agents is "very high," as they try to monitor the progress of their charges.

Former West Sacramento city manager Gene Roh, who now works with the probations department in Alameda County, recently told a radio station that the probations department was headed for trouble because of budget cuts, creating a situation in with people on probation were not being adequately supervised.

But Potnick said the parole department, though stressed, is not in that kind of crisis situation.

How much "correction" does this part of the Department of Corrections perform?

Contamination does not threaten well water, says county

Groundwater at a Glide Ave. location has been contaminated by leaky underground petroleum products storage formerly on site, but that contamination does not affect anyone's well water, county officials say.

Under a public disclosure required by state Prop. 65, the Yolo County Health Dept. announced last week that unsafe levels of benzene (a carcinogen) were found in groundwater 15 feet below the surface at Sacramento Insulation Contractors, 411 Glide Ave.

Levels ranged from 180 to 7,400 PPB (parts per billion) for benzene, a constituent of refined petroleum products. The maximum allowed amount for drinking water is 1 PPB of benzene.

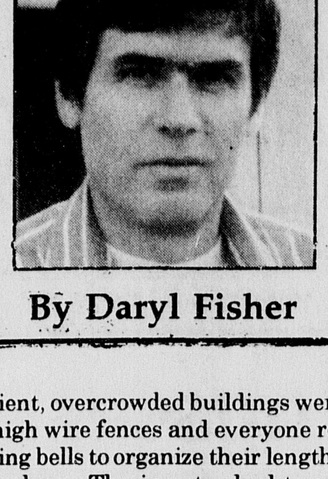

Like other Yolo County aquifers, the contaminated aquifer is identified "as a potential source of drinking water," said the health department, although no wells cur-

Unfortunately, we live in a world of throw-away kids

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Fifteen-year-old Bobby Buxton had made a few acquaintances since his traumatic mid-term transfer to Thomas Jefferson High School, but he had no friends. He never made friends easily, not even under the best of circumstances, his personality and appearance not being conducive to popularity. He was painfully shy and incapable of being outgoing and interesting. He was also embarrassingly thin and weak for his age, and his tiny hands and feet and bony features made him appear even smaller. His plain, acne dotted face seemed to disappoint everyone, especially his handsome parents, both of whom were extremely conscious of the way people looked. He often caught his pretty mother staring at him in sad disbelief, unable to detect even the slightest hint of herself in him.

Bobby's first few months at his new school had been pure torture and he prayed for the day he would graduate and have his life returned to him. He was not a particularly good student and since he rarely complained or caused any trouble, his teachers paid little attention to him. He often sat alone and ignored in his classroom cell, thinking of how much his new school reminded him of a prison. The ancient, overcrowded buildings were surrounded by high wire fences and everyone relied on loud ringing bells to organize their lengthy and monotonous days. The inmates had to eat together, exercise in shifts, dress alike, and never question those in authority. Worst of all, in both institutions, the strong and alike preyed unmercifully on the weak and different.

The most miserable part of Bobby's school day was always 3rd period P.E.. He disliked the strong odor of dirty gym socks and perspiration which hung in the humid locker room air, and he could never make it all the way to the showers without at least one of his classmates taking a wet towel and whipping its coiled tail in Bobby's direction, usually striking him painfully in the thigh or buttocks.

It also seemed to Bobby that he was challenged to a fist fight almost daily, and he reluctantly learned to accept it as part of the price he had to pay for being small and easily frightened. When one of the school's bullies had had a bad day, or needed some peer attention, or just felt like being mean, he usually looked up Bobby. They rarely threw a punch or actually hurt him, but that wasn't the part of fighting Bobby feared anyway. It was the violent, hate filled words which inevitably preceded the blows that Bobby would do almost anything to avoid. They triggered the same internal agony he suffered at home when his stepfather screamed at him and he knew of no way to quickly make the sickening feeling go away once it had begun. It lasted for hours, and sometimes all day, and it had always been that way, ever since he could remember.

It seemed to Bobby that he had been born with his fears and inadequacies and although he was sick of being picked on and made the brunt of everyone's jokes, he knew of no way to stop it. His stepfather had told him over and over to stand up and fight back like a man, but when he had tried that much overrated approach in his freshman year back at his old school, his jaw had been broken in two places and he ended up going back and forth to a dentist's office for six months.

Bobby's schedule of classes called for him to have an early lunch but his stomach was often too upset to sit down to a hot meal. He would grab a candy bar from a vending machine and try to sneak unnoticed into the socially segregated school cafeteria, where the cheerleaders, athletes, intellectuals, those in school government, and even the hoodlums all had a special area where they gathered each noon to eat and talk over their common problems and experiences. Bobby always sat down in the small section set aside for the hardcore unpopular. His little group of outcasts did not talk much or try to comfort one another, each being afflicted with his or her own special brand of unpopularity. The dreaded table was shared by the homely, the obese, the poorly dressed and groomed, a suspected homosexual, the shy and humorless, and those too smart even for the intellectuals. Their expressionless faces all seemed the same to Bobby, with the exception of a girl named Nancy, who was rumored to be willing to sleep with anyone. She always appeared to be deeply absorbed in the depths of a unique despair.

One afternoon, as Bobby mixed in as inconspicuously as possible with other students making their way down the main hall to their next class, he suddenly lost his footing and clumsily crashed to the cold cement floor, his books and papers flying in every direction. As he scrambled to collect his things, the smiling young man who had deliberately tripped him kicked Bobby as hard as he could in the side of the head, and then again in the stomach. Piercing pains shot through Bobby's head and back as he rolled up into a defensive ball and tried to protect his face with his hands. He heard the final bell go off just as one last kick painfully crashed into his forearm. Indifferent students hurrying to their next class picked up their pace and Bobby realized he was just as much in danger of being trampled to death as he was of being kicked senseless.

Suddenly all alone, Bobby quickly gave up trying to get his broken nose to stop bleeding. He struggled to his feet and stumbled out of the hallway through a little used side exit. Taking lengthy rest breaks every few steps to let the throbbing pain in his stomach and back subside, he shuffled all the way out to the varsity football team's deserted practice field. He slumped down on an old wooden bleacher bench, placed his elbows on his knees, and buried his bloody face in his hands. His eyes filled with tears and he began to cry. He tried to think of someone to share the unbelievable horrors of his day with, but there was no one. He wished his father had lived, thinking that maybe he would have been interested in his pain and suffering, in his deepest fears and dreams.

"Enough is enough," he finally whispered to himself as he choked down his tears and wiped his eyes with his bloodstained hands. "You've already put this off much too long."

With a surprisingly steady hand, Bobby reached back and pulled his wallet out of his pant's pocket. He fumbled around inside it until he located the brand new razor blade he had taken from his

The Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

The Dallas Cowboys return to the Super Bowl to face the Pittsburgh Steelers on Jan. 28 in Tempe, Arizona. The Cowboys thumped the Green Bay Packers 38-27, after trailing Green Bay 27-24 deep into the third quarter. Green Bay had the game in their hands, but lack of experience in the big games cost them in the fourth quarter when Emmitt Smith ran for two touchdowns and put Dallas in position to win their fifth ring in Super Bowl XXX.

The Steelers, on the other hand, had to wait until the final seconds to see if the Colts' "Hail Mary" pass into the end zone would deny them a Super Bowl appearance for the second year in a row! The final play was ruled incomplete, and the Steelers won 20-16. The Steelers advance to the Big Game for the first time in 16 years.

Pittsburgth will also be trying to win their fifth Super Bowl ring. The Cowboys are 13 point betting favorites. The NFC has won the Super Bowl 11 consecutive seasons. the last AFC team to win the Super Bowl was the Los Angeles Raiders, with a victory over the Washington Redskins in 1983!

The Sacramento Kings (20-13) returned from their cold trip back East with one win and four lopsided losses. The Kings beat the N.Y. Knicks, but were skunked by Atlanta, Washington, Minnesota and Boston, which came back from a 25-point deficit to beat the Kings for the 17th year in a row in Boston. The "Lucky Leprechaun" still lives!!

The Kings need to package a couple of players (Simmons, Causwell and Hurley) and trade for another guard to take the pressure off Mitch Richmond. Kings' next game is at home against Portland on Thursday.

The San Francisco Giants pulled off the steal of the year, signing righthanded pitcher Osvaldo Fernandez, a Cuban defector. The 27-year old hard-throwing control specialist pitched the Cuban team to the gold medal at the 1992 Olympics. He should break into the starting rotation this year!!

See ya next week!!

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Of cancer stick billboards & bridge building bonds

Is the cigarette industry, or at least some tobacco companies, targeting young people for cigarette sales?

The answer from the industry is always "No. . . of course not. . . that would be irresponsible," or something like that.

But take a look at the new Camel billboard you can see on the north side of Business 80, while your are driving eastbound near the I-80 split in West Sacramento. Just what do you think is the target market age group for this ad?

Discussion of the planned financing for a new barge canal bridge will be delayed from tonight until probably Feb. 7. But here are a few more points to consider:

■ A suggested change to the West Sacramento city general plan will pave the way for new truck terminals in any heavy industrial or waterfront industrial zone in the city, including the Southport Industrial Park and Port of Sacramento.

So while the planned Palamidessi bridge has been scaled back from six lanes to four, and the rail bridge has been dropped from immediate consideration (which would seem to mean that more materials would be shipped to and from industry in Southport by truck), we may be planning to add additional truck traffic to the Palamidessi bridge by allowing truck terminals in Southport.

Added to the concerns voiced here last week, does it still look like the Palamidessi Bridge (a bridge designed for industry) will do Southport residents much good? How many of them will choose the roundabout traffic patterns the new bridge will offer them, combined with heavy truck traffic, over the more direct (but still congested) Jefferson Blvd. crossing?

■ The amount of extra taxes placed on new residents of the Gateway and Gainsborough housing projects to pay for this bridge will be considered their "fair share" of the costs of the solution to the barge canal traffic solution problem.

We will not be able to demand that these developments chip in again later, for the expansion of the Jefferson bridge or for the construction of a new bridge designed to serve the residents. So their contribution, through the planned Mello-Roos district, is really a one-shot deal.

Is the Palamidessi Bridge really the place their money should go? Will we regret it later, when we are looking for ways to fund a more appropriate solution to residential traffic problems?

When we decided that future residents of Gainsborough and Gateway would heavily use this new bridge, and therefore should pay a "fair share" of it, did we use traffic criteria as strict as those we held up for private developers such as Cheaper?

■ Any time you approve special taxes on residential lots such as Gateway and Gainsborough, it creates a financial load on future homeowners who are already burdened with mortgage payments. This is true whether the special taxes are for school bonds or for Mello-Roos bonds used to build a bridge.

Homeowners already burdened with several hundred dollars worth of these extra taxes on every parcel to pay for an industrial bridge are therefore going to be less likely to vote for new construction bonds, or for new school bonds.

Is this particular trade-off good for West Sacramento? Are we sure this money will be well-spent for these residents? Approving this deal will make it harder to ask for money from these subdivisions in the future.

Letters to the Editor

Thanks, cops!

After having lived on Park Blvd. for nine years, we would like to thank the West Sacramento Police Department for any and all efforts made to enforce the speed limit on our neighborhood street. Our children regularly play with other Park Blvd. neighborhood children, and so the safety on this street is especially critical to us.

Yes, Park Blvd. is a wide street and tempting to many hurried, impatient drivers, but it is a neighborhood street and all help provided by the policy officers and considerate, law-abiding drivers is dearly appreciated.

More on buses

I understand it will cost $300,000.00 to repair the "Welcome Grove Underpass" on West Capitol Avenue west of 5th Street, allowing YoloBuses to once again travel that path. (City staff should be investigating why school buses are still using that route as they prohibit YoloBuses from doing so...) Given our City's financial pains and that to "just repair" said underpass would still net us a substandard underpass for the projected development area, why just throw away $300,000.00 -- only to have to tear it down for a wider and higher underpass shortly afterwards?

Since the Money Store will be building its headquarters very soon on our side just north of the Tower Bridge, other development should follow shortly. With larger sewer pipe being laid on West Capitol Ave. on the other side of the underpass, that hints strongly of more development there. And will not that, the Money Store, etc. call for increased traffic flow thru that underpass?

Normally, roads and their "relatives" must be updated as a pre-condition of allowing major development approval. And since the Money Store should make money on a commission-like basis as our riverfront develops further, it makes sense for them to help finance a wider, higher and stronger underpass to meet local future needs.

On a closely related issue, YoloBus will hold a public hearing on January 23 at 2 p.m. at City Hall and the subject will be that of rerouting the portions of YoloBuses #40 and #41 from between West Capitol Ave./ Jefferson Blvd. to/from Downtown Sacramento via West Capitol Ave. to (via) Jefferson Blvd. north to Sacramento Blvd., east to 5th Street south to West Capitol Ave. and east to the Capitol City for #40 and reverse that for #41. But (I am told) no bus stops can be made near our newly-located County offices off 500 Jefferson Blvd. until traffic signals are located there. Let's hope signals are located so that northbound Jefferson traffic signals stop vehicles just south of "F" Street and southbounders stop north of County offices. This will not only allow our soon-to-be rerouted #40 and #41 YoloBuses to have a safe stopping area, but would give two blocks of traffic control for but one set of traffic signals. This should also make for an ideal, controlled bypass/ alternate route as Welcome Grove Underpass is modernized.

'Sound Off!' is your call-in opinion line. For details, please see the box below left. This week's calls!

I see in today's Ledger that Harbor Blvd. is now open again. I sure am glad to see that, and so are a lot of the businesses there.

I couldn't hardly believe what I read in your editorial, that the West Sacramento City Council would ask a person like "Cheaper" (stores) to guarantee them that it wouldn't increase traffic on Jefferson Blvd. Can any person give such a guarantee for any business in any city?

The "Wild Life" Orchestra is announced to furnish music and after many inquiries nothing else could be found out about the promoters of these dances. Presumably the town hall trustees know who the promoters are and will be careful not to get any rough characters around the hall.

Jack Stoutenburg was the victim of a daring robber last Wednesday, when his home was entered during his absence in Woodland in company with Constable Buckingham. The marauder got away with about $100 worth of Jack's personal belongings, which included two pairs of drawers, one shirt, two razors, one hone, one 38 caliber revolver, two coats, a can of baking powder and a roll of butter. The drawers were returned that evening with the explanation they were too large for any practical purpose and as the robber didn't want blankets he returned the drawers out of pure compassion for the owner. The socks were left on a neighbor's line with a note pinned to them saying they were too large for anything less than a number 14 shoe. Jack is looking for the robber and in the meantime has been forced to purchase new underwear.

The death of Bert Bardin took place last week at Weimar, where he had been sent in an effort to secure relief from tuberculosis. The young man was only 15 years of age and stood 6 feet 4 inches and was still growing. He was a favorite of all who knew him, being amiable, obliging and wholesouled. His abnormal height was blamed to a great extent for the disease that caused his death. His bereaved father, his only surviving relative, is brokenhearted over his loss. The funeral took place last Thursday in Sacramento.

EARLY ACTION EXPECTED IN ROAD BUILDING IN THIS DISTRICT

All the members of the Board of Supervisors of Yolo County, except Supervisor Gladney, spent the greater part of yesterday viewing the roadways of this district of the county.

The principal object of their visit was to view the land at Sixth and Ann Streets that is to be taken over from the Parkinson block and Henley in order that a wide turn may be made at Sixth and Ann Streets.

After a short session with the property owners the deals were completed and the supervisors went on their way to view other portions of the roadway north and south of the town.

North of Washington the road is completed as far as the Sacramento by-pass, but from that point north to Elkhorn the levee road is in a terrible condition.

For the improvement of this stretch a direct tax has been levied on the property owners that should finish the road.

A dredger has been busy for several weeks raising and widening the levee road north of the by-pass. At the present time the dredger is at work at a point in front of the Bandy ranch and it is estimated it will have completed its work in about two weeks.

In the meantime the ranchers are finding a detour to the west necessary and very inconvenient.

Supervisor Leinberger estimates he will be able to finish this road before the end of summer.

South of Washington the road through West Sacramento is in very good condition except for the one bad spot about two hundred yards south of the M Street bridge. A contract has been let for the improvement of this section, but owing to wet weather the contractors have not been able to get in the field.

A peculiar problem confronts the supervisors in the concrete roadway south of the soil laboratory.

A few weeks ago a 20-ton road roller was put to work on this concrete in an effort to break it up. The road roller did not even dent the surface and yet the road is almost impassable because of the great chuckholes that have been worked in the concrete. Temporarily these chuck holes have been filled with macadam, leaving the road passable for automobiles and teams.

At the church in West Sacramento the road turns east to the river levee, joining the latter at Glide's landing and running southward on top of the levee as far as Clarksburg.

Part of the $1,000,000 bond issue voted two years ago in Yolo County still remains to be spent on this roadway and this will be done during the coming summer.

Last Thursday the supervisors viewed this road also with County Surveyor Proctor and acknowledged that immediate relief should be afforded, especially for that portion between the church and Glide's landing.

HANDSOME GIFT MADE TO WASHINGTON CATHOLIC CHURCH

During the past week there was installed in the Catholic Church of Our Lady of the Blessed Sacrament a handsome new organ, the gift of Mrs. George K. Rider of Sacramento.

This gift came very appropriately and just in time when most needed. The old organ had been used for several years and was in constant need of repairs. Mrs. Rider, noticing this, made the offer to Rev. Father Marcucci, who immediately signified his willingness to accept the instrument in behalf of the church and to have it duly installed.

For the first time next Sunday the organ will be heard at Mass, and Mrs. Rider wants to be present and has promised to be present to hear its peals with the church filled with people.

The organ is of the latest make and beautifully decorated with hand engraving. Father Marcucci and the members of his flock are extending their heartfelt thanks to Mrs. Rider for this handsome donation.

HAMMAN MUST BE SICK; FOUND NO GRAFT IN YOLO COUNTY

Woodland, Jan. 12.—No evidence of crookedness or graft and no significant irregularities will appear in the official typewritten report of W. D. Hamman, who has completed his expert probe into the business affairs of Yolo County. Hamman discussed his findings with the Yolo County Grand Jury today. He would not disclose the details of what his final report will be other than to remark that "it will not be unusual."

Hamman stated that he had found some "slight discrepancies" in the various offices, but nothing that is glaring. In some instances officials are not adhering strictly to the law, but the variance has been probably through misunderstanding of the law and has not been serious, according to the expert.

Hamman specifically stated, "there has been no crookedness and no graft."

WARINGS START SUIT FOR RECOVERY OF RAILWAY LANDS

Woodland, Jan. 9.—Ray Waring, former clerk of the Supreme Court, and Robert Waring, former inheritance tax attorney, have employed A. G. Bailey of the firm of Grant & Bailey, to assist them in recovering land condemned eight years ago by the West Side Railroad Company which planned an extensive system in Eastern Yolo County, covering the districts covered by Washington, Lisbon, Clarksburg and down the line. The railroad company failed to consummate the purposes for which the land was condemned and the Warings are now in the Superior Court of this county in a novel piece of litigation in the hope to have their lands returned to them.

ARRESTED FOR PASSING FORGED CHECK ON BEALE COMPANY

G. Apau, a Hawaiian, was before Judge Barry's court last Tuesday forenoon on a charge of forgery and embezzlement for having passed a check on George Beale in the amount of $85.00.

It seems that Apau not only passed the check but even forged a name for it and then endorsed it when it was presented for cashing.

Apau made claim to George Beale that he wanted to pay his boarding house bill in the amount of $35.00, and in addition took $50.00 in cash from the grocery man. He was arrested by Constable Buckingham.

Under the charge he was held over by Judge Barry to answer before the Superior Court under $1000 bonds.

Your real estate vocabulary

From the California Land Title Association

The language of real estate -- to the unfamiliar, it can often confuse and bewilder.

Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. ARMS and APR. Clear title and Clouded title. Though these terms have special meaning to real estate professionals, they may often be meaningless to the consumer. To help you better understand the language of real estate, the California Land Title Association has defined some of today's most common real estate, lending and title terms.

The following is a continuation of a glossary of terms published January 3 and Jan. 10:

"L" – Legal Description: A description by which property can be definitely located by reference to surveys or recorded maps. Sometimes referred to simply as the legal.

Lien: A recorded document which claims an interest in real property as security for a debt owed. Such liability may be created by contract, such as a deed of trust, or by a court judgement.

Lis Pendens: Legal notice that a lawsuit is pending. Also called a notice of action.

Loan-to-Value Ratio: The ratio of the mortgage loan's principal to the property's appraised value or its sales price, whichever is lower.

"M" – Marketable Title: Title which is free from defects which would allow a purchaser to be released from his obligation to purchase.

Market Value: An appraisal term denoting the highest price that a buyer, willing but not compelled to buy, would pay, and the lowest a seller, willing but not compelled to sell, would accept.

Mechanic's Lien: A lien on real estate which secures the payment of debts due to persons who perform labor or services or furnish materials incident to the construction of buildings and improvement on real estate.

Metes and Bounds: A form of land description in which boundaries are described by courses, directions, distances and monuments.

Mortgage: A legal document used to secure the performance of an obligation.

"N" – Notarization: The certification by a Notary Public that a person signing a document has been property identified. Notarization does not certify the content of a document, only validity of signature.

"P" – Perfecting Title: Process involving the elimination of any adverse claims against a title.

PITI: Refers to principal, interest, taxes and insurance, the four major components of a usual monthly mortgage payment.

PITI Ratio: The principal, interest, tax and insurance payment to income ratio. Used in mortgage lending decisions.

Points: A fee charged by the lender to fund a loan, in addition to and separate from other fees charged. One point equals one percent of the amount of the loan.

Principal: The sum of money outstanding upon which interest is payable. Also refers to one who is served by an agent.

Private Mortgage Insurance (PMI): Insurance written by a private mortgage insurance company protecting the mortgage lender against loss occasioned by a mortgage default and foreclosure.

Proration: The method used in dividing charges into that portion which applies only to a party's ownership up to a particular date.

"Q" – Qualification: The process of reviewing a prospective borrower's credit and payment capacity prior to approving a loan.

Quitclaim Deed: A deed relinquishing all interest, title or claim in a property by a party without representing that such title is valid, nor containing any warranty or covenants of title.

"R" – Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA): A federal statute requiring disclosure of certain costs in the sale of residential, improved property which is to be financed by a federally insured lender.

Reconveyance: The conveyance to the landowner of the title, held by a trustee under a deed of trust, when the performance of the debt is satisfied.

Recordation: The process on filing documents for record in the office of the county recorder for the purpose of giving constructive notice of title, claim or interest in real property.

Record Owner: The owner of property as shown by an examination of the public record.

Reverse Annuity Mortgage (RAM): A form of mortgage which enables elderly homeowners to borrow against the equity in their homes so they can receive monthly payments needed to help meet living costs. Under this plan, the inflow and outflow of funds is in reverse to the standard conventional loan. The homeowner receives periodic payments (not necessarily equal payments) based on accumulated equity; the payments are made directly by the lender or through the purchase of an annuity from an insurance company. The loan comes due either upon a specific date or upon the occurrence of a specific event, such as sale of the property or death of the borrower.

"S" – Statement of Information (SI): A confidential information statement completed by the buyer, seller and borrower in every transaction where a policy or policies of title insurance are requested.

stepfather's shaving kit a few months earlier. He removed its cardboard covering and watched calmly as the bright sunshine reflected off it. He wasn't as scared as he had thought he would be. He looked up into the high, cloudless sky and took a deep, relaxing breath.

Without the slightest hesitation, Bobby gripped the razor blade firmly between his fingers and slashed his left wrist as deeply as he could. Then he quickly switched hands and cut across his right wrist. He was surprised that his nose hurt worse than his wrists. He thought at length of the brutality of others, and of how everyone would probably think he was crazy, and then his tired, unimportant thoughts were no more.

The hot early afternoon sun was still almost straight overhead when Bobby's lifeless body was found by three members of Jefferson High's cross-country track team as they ran extra laps. While one raced for help, the other two stared down in shocked disbelief.

"Who is he?" asked one of the young athletes, his face almost a white as Bobby's. There was a long pause.

"He's new, I think," replied the other. "I don't know his name. I've seen him around, though." There was another pause, and then he softly added, "Why in the world would anyone want to do that?"

Soroptimist Club offers scholarships based on performance, need

Applications are now available at River City High School and Yolo Alternative Education Center for the 1996 Soroptimist International of West Sacramento scholarships.

The scholarships are awarded annually to local high school graduates who qualify academically with a 3.0 of better grade point average and are in need of financial assistance to continue their education.

Interested seniors should contact Dr. Donna White, principal of River City High School, 1100 Clarendon Street, or Mrs. Lora Edwards, counselor at Yolo Alternative Education Center, 920 West Acres Road.

To be considered for the 1996 SI of WS scholarships, candidates must return their completed applications and all supporting documentation to the contact person at the high school by May 2, 1996.

The Soroptimist International of West Sacramento scholarships are supported by service projects conducted during the year. The funds are directed to the scholarships program to encourage continuing education for the improvement in the quality of life for the individual and the larger community.

Ask to see their badge

From the West Sacramento Police Department

How can you tell if someone who comes to your door trying to sell you something is legally licensed to conduct business within City limits? The answer is simple. You can expect to see them wearing a photo-identifying badge if they are legally licensed.

In 1989, in order to promote public safety, the City of West Sacramento enacted an ordinance requiring special licensing of traveling merchants, hawkers, peddlers and itinerant vendors, more commonly thought of as door-to-door salespeople.

Licensed vendors are issued badges by the West Sacramento Police Department. A business license permits the City to identify and search for persons on whom they have received complaints. The license is not an endorsement or guarantee of the product or service. Anyone soliciting business without a license should be reported to the polic department for investigation by telephoning the non-emergency number (375-6474).

An application for a business license can be obtained from the city's finance department, 2101 Stone Blvd., West Sacramento, second floor. For information, call 373-5810.

successfully make the transition to a law-abiding life, was Potnick's answer.

"By and large, I've found that in their first year or so, these people have a real proclivity to re-offend," said Potnick. "By the time a person hits the felony conviction level, the behavior patterns are pretty much cemented. But we do have our success stories."

If they are caught violating parole conditions (through possession of drugs or weapons, or the commission of new crimes, for example), they may be sent back to prison.

Potnick's promotion means a little more paper shuffling and a little less fieldwork, he said -- but he still enjoys the field work, interviewing the parolees and their families and friends to try to gain a picture of how the parolee is doing.

"Every time you go out in the car, it's a different day. Nothing is ever the same. But this new position is very independent, and gives me a chance to make lots of decisions for my community."

rently exist "near or adjacent to the facility."

"No wells other than monitoring wells are believed to have been impacted," they added.

More work is being done to further determine the extent of the contamination, and monitoring wells will be checked quarterly.

Soil contamination was discovered when the three tanks, used by a previous business, were removed from the site in 1993.. Stockpiles of soil prevented the water from being tested until September, 1995.
